Figure: Retrospective comparison of voltage maps obtained during sinus rhythm using a HD grid catheter in a patient with paroxysmal AF. Geometry creation and voltage mapping of was performed during sinus rhythm using a HD Grid catheter. Retrospective comparison of standard configuration map, using all bipole pairs down the splines only with 12 bipolar sets, shows lower point coverage and larger low voltage area compared to the map created using HD Wave Solution configuration.